

Landscape Destruction Coming From Below?

Contact Stay Green for Gopher Control!

They invade your clients' landscapes from below, gnawing, clawing and chewing their way through the roots of residents' plants, turf, trees and shrubs. They pose a menace to vegetation -- and property owners' investments in healthy, beautiful landscapes.

Gophers. If your clients are having a bad "Caddyshack" flashback this spring, they're not alone.

Stay Green's team of experts is getting quite a few customer inquiries about gophers this year, as gopher control is one of the biggest issues facing property owners in our area. If your clients are having gopher trouble, the Stay Green team can help -- and your clients will be grateful to you for it!

In addition to the obvious problems of mounds and holes dotting a landscape, gophers can kill freshly planted trees because they prefer to eat the nutrient- and moisture-rich absorbing roots of a new tree. Stay Green's team is certified in pest control, and is professionally trained in addressing this landscape nuisance.

This is the time of year when gophers make their presence most known: They reproduce in the winter, so in the spring and summer they are at the height of their activity. So, watch for those telltale mounds and holes -- they could be a sign of big trouble lurking below the surface.

If your clients have gopher trouble, call the Stay Green team today at (800) 858-5508 for expert gopher control!
